Here and There

Editorial By ALEX. H. WASHBURN

THE Chicago Tribune, which seldom passes up a chance to sneer at the South in general, and Arkansas in particular, takes a rap at our state this time because the voters adopted Initiative Act No. 3 at the general election November 3. Among other things, Act No. 3 permits professional immunity to newspaper men when haled into court as witnesses in certain cases. The Tribune snaps at us like this: "The Arkansas law tends to encourage editorial irresponsibility, and in the long run will make allies for those who would like to muzzle the press."

DuPont Tradition Democratic; Don't Wed for Wealth

Many of Ethel's Kinswomen Have Married Men Who Were Poor

BUT ALL EMPLOYED

Here Is an Insight Into Traditions of DuPonts, Roosevelts

By SIGRID ARNE

(Last in a Series)

WASHINGTON—(AP)—New Year's Day arrives and the Du Pont families of Wilmington observe a family tradition carried through many generations.

The women dress their prettiest and stay at home beside heavy-laden buffets and wine-carts to greet the day's guests.

But the men put on their top-hats, fill the back seats of their cars with sweet-meats and go the rounds of all the du Pont homes. It's the one day of the year in which all the du Ponts see all the du Ponts.

That's one custom to which the young and handsome Franklin Roosevelt, Jr., probably will be introduced when he marries the beauty of the Wilmington clan, Ethel du Pont, in June.

But Miss du Pont no doubt will be inducted into just as interesting a Roosevelt custom. Their most famous one centers around birthdays in the family. The family gathers wherever the President and his wife happen to be.

A magnificent cake is brought to the dinner table. It never bears more than 21 candles, for age stops there for the Roosevelts as far as the birthday cake is concerned. Each diner lights one candle and makes a wish for the birthday child. If any remain unlighted, the round starts again, and those lucky may make a wish for themselves.

Traditions flourish.

Those are just two outstanding traditions which will enrich the future lives of the country's No. 1 romancers of the day. There are many others.

For instance, the homes. Each family has a summer home on the Maine coast. The du Ponts go to North East Harbor, Maine, where they sail and play golf in the tangy air. The Roosevelts go to Camp Bello, a resort island in New Brunswick, Canada, where they sail and pick picnic bampers.

Each winter the two families repair to the south.

Roosevelts Love Fun

Even the year-round homes of the two families are much alike. The du Pont man is a big place with mahogany furniture, fireplaces, books and one "showroom," the two-story entrance hall in which the bride's father has hung his hunting trophies.

The Roosevelt home is another comfortable, rambling place with books and mahogany. But instead of hunt-

Negro Jailed for Theft of Chickens

Eight Fowls Stolen, But Six Are Recovered From Market

Jimmy (Owl) Fox, negro, was held in jail Tuesday charged with theft of eight chickens from Mrs. Jim Cargile, South Shover street. The chickens were stolen Sunday night.

Six of the fowls were recovered from a local meat market and returned to Mrs. Cargile. The negro denied theft of the chickens. His story is that another negro asked him to dispose of the chickens.

Fox was unable to give police the name of the second negro. Policemen Hugh Bearden and John Turner made the arrest.

Bishop of Bradford Warns Edward He "Needs Grace of God"

Hidden Clerical Criticism Brought to Head by Bishop

LONDON, Eng.—(AP)—The Bishop of Bradford warned King Edward the Eighth Tuesday that he needs the grace of God as much as any of his subjects.

He made a thinly-veiled public criticism of the king's private life in an address to the Bradford Diocesan Conference.

It was the first time a bishop of the Church of England has publicly mentioned King Edward's personal affairs.

Reports have been current for some time that high clergymen were disturbed over the king's friendship with Mrs. Wallis Simpson.

Ex Hope Man Is Killed in Wreck

Thomas Chester Woodul, 30, Victim of Portola (Calif.) Crash

Thomas Chester Woodul, about 30, former Hope man, was killed in an automobile wreck near Portola, Calif., during the week-end. It was learned here Tuesday.

Chief of Police John W. Ridgill received the following telegram from California authorities:

"Please locate relatives of Thomas Chester Woodul, reported former resident of Hope. This man killed in auto accident near here."

Chief Ridgill said that he had located the man's father, M. L. Woodul, now living in San Angelo, Texas. A brother of the dead man, Cullins Woodul, also lives at San Angelo, Ridgill said.

Mrs. C. F. Erwin of Hope is a distant relative of the accident victim.

The Wooduls lived in Hope several years ago, moving here from their native home in Nevada county.

Boy of 18 Is Held in Grocer Killing

Is Believed to Be Slayer of Little Rock Store Manager

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—Detective Chief O. N. Martin obtained a continuance Tuesday until December 10 of the preliminary hearing for George Fred Schneider, 18, charged with murder in the holdup killing of M. B. Matkin, grocery store manager, on November 7.

May Be Identified

LITTLE ROCK—(AP)—George Fred Schneider, about 18, a lodger at 308 East Eighth street, was charged with first degree murder by Deputy Prosecuting Attorney Henry Spitzberg Monday after seven persons pointed Schneider out as the robber who November 7 shot and killed M. B. Matkin, 37, Kroger Grocery & Baking Co. store manager, during a hold-up.

Schneider is held without bond. He denies any knowledge of the crime.

Chief of Detectives O. N. Martin, after the witnesses had left the station, said he was convinced Schneider was the killer. Chief of Police Pitcock and Martin commended the detectives, especially Cousins and Smith, who arrested the suspect, for their work.

Schneider was arrested last Tuesday in his room and since then has been held in the city and county jails. He has been questioned on several occasions, but always denied knowledge of the crime. He told the officers that he was nowhere near the store the night of the killing. Martin said every alibi offered had been proved to be false.

Matkin was slain as he tried to prevent a robber who had held up a clerk in his store at 1306 Main street from leaving the scene in an automobile. He died en route to a hospital. Police listed seven witnesses who said they would be able to recognize the thief.

The officers returned a man from Missouri, but the witnesses were positive that he was not the murderer.

—What You Should Know About— NEW SOCIAL SECURITY LAW

9. What Does "Wages" Mean Under the Federal Old-Age Benefits Plan?

THE term "wages" as defined in the Federal Old-Age Benefits section of the Social Security Act, means all remuneration for employment, including the cash value of remuneration in any medium other than money. The term does not include remuneration in excess of $3000 from any one employer during any calendar year.

The term "employment" means any service, of whatever nature, performed within the United States by an employee for his employer, except:

1. Agricultural labor.
2. Domestic service in a private home.
3. Casual labor not in the course of an employer's trade or business.
4. Service as officer or member of the crew of a vessel documented under the laws of the United States or of any foreign country.
5. Service for the United States or an instrumentality of the United States.

6. Service for a state or its political subdivisions or an instrumentality of one or more states or political subdivisions.
7. Employment by nonprofit institutions organized and operated exclusively for religious, charitable, scientific, literary, or educational purposes, or for the prevention of cruelty to children or animals.

Since the law states that "employment" means any service, of whatever nature, performed within the United States by an employee for his employer, remuneration from self-employment or for services not performed within the United States will not be used in computing Federal Old-Age Benefits.

If an individual's wages for a week from a covered employment in total of $8000 for that year will be credited to his Social Security account.

If an individual's wages for a week from a covered employment in the United States are $25, but in addition his employer lets him use the house he lives in free of rent, the amount of rent will be credited to his Social Security account along with the amount he receives in cash.

Mediation Move Rumored for Spain of Bus Recovering

Meanwhile, Government Strikes at Burgos, Seat of Rebel Power

BILBOA, Spain—(AP)—The Spanish government's armies of the north pushed forward on two fronts Tuesday in a combined offensive directed at Burgos, seat of the insurgent junta.

By the Associated Press

Although officials refused to confirm the reports, the Paris press said Tuesday that France and Great Britain were preparing an attempt to mediate the Spanish civil war.

Vatican prelates denied rumors that the Holy See was participating.

London reports said that any move toward an armistice would be made by the League of Nations council when it assembles to discuss charges that Germany and Italy are aiding the Fascist attack.

Government Gains Ground

MADRID, Spain—(AP)—A reliable government source announced Tuesday the capture of the strategic Hospital Clinico from the insurgents in an all-morning battle in University City.

The violent government attack on the modern building, one of the major Fascist strongholds in northwestern Madrid during the long siege of the city, began with a heavy cannonading.

Then a great blast from government mines tore at the structure. Reports said the building was half destroyed.

Heavy Bombing Losses

MADRID, Spain—(AP)—Fascist bombs shook Madrid Monday night when Fascist air raiders made their third expedition over the capital within 24 hours.

The raid started at 10:15 p. m. (4:15 p. m. CST) and 10 bombs exploded on the model prison barracks. A count showed 365 persons were killed where they stood.

The late night bombing of Madrid followed an announcement in a Spanish government bulletin that a strong Fascist attack on the strategic town of Paezuela de Alarcón, about seven miles

Turnip-Eating Cow Is Brought to Cops by Turnips' Owners

Two negro women of the Oaklawn settlement, north of Hope, led a Jersey cow up to police headquarters Monday night and asked to see "de law."

They reported that the cow had been mowing down their turnip patch at night and urged "de law" to do something about it.

At noon Tuesday Police Chief Ridgill had been unable to locate the owner of the cow, now tied with a rope at the rear of Middlebrooks Grocery.

As the city maintains no pound for stray animals, Chief Ridgill appealed to The Star in an effort to locate the owner.

Miss Beryl Henry Reviews 1936 Season at Kiwanis Luncheon

TOTAL COST $1,500

Equipment Purchased by Athletic Ass'n. From Revenues at Gate

Equipment for this year's Hope High School football team cost approximately $1,500, Miss Beryl Henry, superintendent of Hope Public Schools, told the Kiwanis club at its luncheon meeting Tuesday noon at New Capital hotel. The cost is covered by the Hope Athletic association, from gate receipts.

It costs approximately $50 to fully suit one player, she pointed out. Miss Henry reviewed the season and pointed with pride to the record established by the team.

Miss Henry was presented on a program arranged by Sid Budy and Arthur Swanke.

Following her talk, Richard Reich of the Kiwanis lighting committee, reported that part of the equipment of the downtown area during the Christmas holidays has arrived. He said that this equipment would be turned over to a local electrician within a few days for installation.

Mr. Reich said that about $50 was needed to cover installation costs.

The Rev. Bert Webb and A. W. Stubbeman were appointed as a committee to arrange for gathering of toys to be distributed to underprivileged children of Hope at Christmas time.

The toys will be turned over to the Hope Fire Department for repair and to be repainted.

Arthur Swanke, manager of Saenger theater, reported that the theater would stage a benefit performance December 21. Fruits and toys will be taken as the admission price.

Dr. R. M. Wilson to Lecture Here

Will Speak on Korea at 7:45 p. m. Wednesday in City Hall

Dr. R. Manton Wilson, Columbus native and a missionary in Korea for many years, will lecture at 7:45 p. m. Wednesday at Hope city hall.

Dr. Wilson will tell of the many habits and customs of Korean people and will show many scenes in connection with his Leprosy work in the Orient.

Dr. Wilson's lecture is under auspices of the local churches. Prayer meetings have been cancelled to allow churchgoers to attend.

His lecture will be at 7:45. The public is invited.

A. Liberman Hurt in Motor Crash

Automobile Collides With Truck—Companion Is Uninjured

TEXARKANA—(AP)—Albert Lieberman, president of the Southwestern Gas & Electric Co., here, was injured seriously late Monday when a truck crowded his automobile from a highway north of Texarkana. The extent of his hurts was not immediately determined.

John Gleboff, of Texarkana, who was riding with Lieberman, was unhurt.

No charges were filed against the truck driver.

Garner Says Knox Did All Campaigning Needed

LOUISVILLE, Ky.—If business keeps up like it is going there won't be enough things to go around by Christmas. For the last six or seven years about the only places you couldn't find a bumper in were the ten-cent stores but now you have to wear bumpers front and rear and have special training if you manage to crowd into the higher-price shops, and people are spending money—some of it laid away so long till it's creaked or turned yellow.

From the way things look in Europe it will be Japan, Germany and Italy on one side, and England, France and Russia on the other.

Liquor Contest to Circuit Court 19th

Will Hear Appeal From Stephens' Reversal of Official Count

The Hempstead county liquor election contest case, appealed from a county court decision of October 28, has been set for a hearing in circuit court January 19, it was learned Tuesday.

The decision of October 28 was handed down by County Judge H. M. Stephens who reversed the official canvass and ruled that the county voted dry by a margin of 100 votes.

At that time the county judge gave Hope's six liquor stores 60 days in which to close.

County Must Pay Expense of Court

Supreme Court Upholds Circuit's Demand Upon County Judge

LITTLE ROCK—County judges have no choice but to allow claims for salaries of grand jury stenographers and court reporters when there is sufficient money in the county general fund to pay them, the Arkansas Supreme Court held Monday in affirming a judgment of Franklin Circuit Court.

County Judge R. H. Burrow refused to act upon the claims of Lonnie Bachelor and Ralph Robinson, grand jury stenographer and court reporter, respectively, for the Fifteenth Judicial Circuit.

Bachelor and Robinson filed a petition in Franklin Circuit Court for a mandamus order to compel the county judge to allow their claims, showing that there were sufficient funds to pay them and that the salaries had been earned.

Burrow contended that it was a matter within the discretion of the county court to allow or disallow the claims and that the circuit court has no authority to compel the county court by law. The circuit court took the opposite view, as the salaries are provided for by law. In affirming the decision, the supreme court said:

"These claims are a part of the necessary expense of the operation of the county government and take precedence over all permissive expenditures."

"They are imposed by law and must be paid as long as there is money within the general fund to pay them. If this were not so, county government must stop. It is no discretionary matter with the county court to allow them, and if it fails to do so, the circuit court may compel him to perform this ministerial act."

If the law were otherwise, county courts might obstruct the necessary and orderly administration of the affairs of the county."

The circuit court impounded the money in the hands of the treasurer, and the supreme court held that it had the right to do so.

BODYGUARD IS DEAD

Gus Gennerich Stricken While Dancing in Buenos Aires Cafe

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina—(AP)—President Roosevelt declared flatly Tuesday at a press conference that there was a possibility of the United States entering the League of Nations.

Speaks for Peace

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina—(AP)—President Roosevelt opened the Inter-American Peace Conference Tuesday night (Argentine time) with the assertion that the 21 New World republics could help avert war in the Old World by maintaining peace among themselves.

But at the same time the president proposed that the American republics make it clear that they stand shoulder to shoulder to prevent aggression should war flare up abroad.

Roosevelt urged "the strengthening of the processes of constitutional democratic government as the best means to prevent any future war among ourselves."

As a second move toward peace the president urged the American republics to "strive even more strongly than in the past to prevent the creation of those conditions which give rise to war."

Gas Well Comes in for Nevada Co.

Production of 4 Million Feet Daily From Depth of 1,218

CAMDEN, Ark.—A gasser was added to the two producing oil wells in the Nevada field west of Camden, Monday when a test on the Benedict & Trees Grove No. 2 came in with a flow estimated at 4,000,000 cubic feet a day.

Officials of the Arkansas Conservation Board checked the well.

The well is down 1,218 feet. Gas was struck at about the same level as was oil in the Grove No. 3. This showing of gas together with the estimated production of 1,000 to 1,200 barrels of oil daily of the Grove No. 3 of the same company, made it certain that the Nevada field would get a big "play."

The discovery well of this same company, the Grove No. 1, is making 500 barrels a day at the 2,200-foot level.

All these wells are in section 10-14-20. The second and third wells are in the Nacatoch sand while the discovery well is at the lower level in the Tokyo sand.

The No. 2 on the Grove Land and Timber Company tract, offset to the discovery well, came in as a gasser Sunday, and in 15 minutes blew away an eight-inch elbow on the pipe leading from the well. Several feet of oil

Membrane Causes Most Nose Troubles
By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine.

This is the first of a series of articles by Dr. Fishben, dealing with nose, ear, and throat diseases, and the common cold.

Midway in the face between the eyes is an organ which, for its size and prominence, gives the human being more concern than any other part of his body. In more ways than one, it is the center of interest.

There really is not much to a nose. It is composed of some small bones, cartilages, and soft tissues which surround the two cavities called the nostrils.

It is lined with a mucous membrane, which is mostly responsible for troubles that affect the nose.

On each side of the nose, in back and above it, are the nasal sinuses. These are cavities in the bones of the head which connect with the inside of the nose by small openings.

In addition to the tissues mentioned, there are, of course, the usual blood vessels and nerves responsible for bringing in and taking out blood, and for giving us the sensation of odor, and also those of pain, itching, and other disturbances which may occur in the nose.

The mucous membrane of the nose is the most sensitive tissue in the body. When it is bruised or hurt in any way, it responds promptly with swelling and inflammation. It also is sensitive to various protein substances, which will cause it to swell and pour out a considerable amount of fluid.

Occasionally a small ulcer or infection in the nose will erode a blood vessel; then a crust will form and there will be an oozing of blood.

Inside the nose are hair follicles and hairs which filter out dust or infectious materials brought into the nose with the air.

The pus-forming germs, such as the staphylococcus and the streptococcus, are widespread and usually will enter the human body whenever they come in contact with tissues that have been damaged in any manner. Then comes an infection which may eventually spread throughout the rest of the body.

A nose is best let alone. The pernicious habit of picking the nose, pulling hairs, and trying to squeeze pimples or other infections may set up forms of inflammation that are most serious.

When an infection in the form of a pimple, a boil, or an abscess occurs in the nose, it is best to have prompt, competent medical attention to prevent spread of these infections, and a general poisoning of the body.

One of the latest methods of treatment for such conditions is use of the X-ray.

Rhyming With Reason—Jingling Is Mental Gymnastics

"I think," chirped the robin
I'll lay a blue egg.
For I don't like the color
Of cloves and nutmeg."
A line apiece went round the table.
Result, the above.
Here's another the family got off:
"Lavender is mauve.
The ship is in the cove,
The lights went out
Without a doubt,
Because the moon arrove."
Silly? Certainly. But this result of spontaneous creation has point, at that.

Last Rhymster Is Best
It keeps every one alert. It pits each one's wits against the next fellow's. And, although one may coin words and improvise, as in "arrove" instead of "arrieved," the invention must be probable, and it must, by context, prove its own meaning.

In the last line, the palm goes to the final inventor, because he has to do the best he can to gather the preceding lines into some semblance of sense. The first person to start the ball rolling has a snap, because he or she can spout whatever nonsense comes to hand. It should be done quickly, but it is all soundly complicated, but is actually easy and simple.

Such sensible nonsense is a grand thing for the whole family from Grandma to Bud.

Try it. You don't have to know the difference between iambic or anapestic meter. Rhyming, like dancing, can adapt itself to natural waves within oneselves.

I have a habit, when I'm tired, of working out jingles. It rests me at times more than solitary or even a good story. I only use the top of my mind. That's the fun of it. I just found this, forgotten, in an old folder. Johnny speaking:

"A great big Williwink
Sat on my milk cup, and took a drink;
Then I took one, and so did he,
Then I took two, but he took three.
Then Mama came and stared right in,
And said all big-eyed, 'Well, you DID begin!'"

It was pretty good, her mentioning that Williwink.
Or I'd be growing littler, and he'd be bigger still, I think."

Working Out Pattern of Words
I have no flair for rhyming. But it is like working a pattern in fabric. When finished, it is a unit with meaning. Perhaps dull, or stupid or merely fantastic, but at least it is yours. Nothing is so satisfying to either child or man—or woman—as invention of one sort or another.

Children love little jingles. They will certainly enjoy their own fabrications. Nothing acts so quickly on mental muscles as matching word sounds, and then fitting them to meaning in the family circle.

Anyway, it's a lot of fun.
"Serve it with the soup,
Fess it with the nuts.
Think of 'leigh' and Christmas Day
Of 'reindeer' fleet, and the 'milky' way
With a share of 'ands' and 'buts.'"

Pickford-Rogers Romance Dates From 1927, When Mary Was Buddy's Screen "Best Girl"

HOLLYWOOD.—Any tracing of the romance of Mary Pickford and Buddy Rogers must begin away back in 1927, when they made their first and last picture together, "My Best Girl." Without this film appearance, there wouldn't have been any romance.

"But not," said America's erstwhile boy friend, "for the reason that many people think."

Spare their blushes. No affection was involved in that brief association, which was scarcely more than acquaintanceship. America's Sweetheart had just passed the zenith of nearly 13 years of "ideal marriage" to Douglas Fairbanks.

Rogers had scarcely begun his career as a perennial juvenile, and his name was still to be linked in gossip with many a young actress.

But that picture marked two important things: The beginning of a strong friendship between Charles Rogers, friend and Miss Pickford, and the beginning of the actress' interest in Rogers as an actor. From these came romance.

Mary Was Buddy's Boss
Buddy was at first merely an actor, and Miss Pickford was his boss. As both a star and an independent producer, she found herself in something of a plight. She needed talent badly, and she needed it young. She particularly required a leading man. Looking over the field, she selected a few candidates; Johnny Mack Brown was one, Rogers another. The latter won the lead in "My Best

HERBLOCK

Girl," which was a trifle based on the usual Cinderella-Pickford formula—a girl working in a dime store meets and marries the son of the owner.

He was a protégé of the First Lady of Hollywood, and the screen colony heard that she regretted that she could not further advance his career. But she made no more independent productions, and thereafter was cast with other leading men.

"Greatest of Friends"
Nevertheless, you can get an idea of what Rogers had in mind when he said in London, "Mary has done more for me than any other person in the whole world." Mary and I are the greatest of friends, and have been for six years. But marriage!—ah, how can I talk of that?

As early as 1931, rumblings were heard about Hollywood that all was not well at Pickfair. Fairbanks began to wander about the world.

Miss Pickford, tight-lipped, worked harder than ever in the colony. And in not time at all, gossip in the night spots began to wonder whether the star and the perpetual collegian really were close friends.

In 1933 Miss Pickford confirmed the fact of her separation from Fairbanks. In that year, also, interested observers noted a considerable display of affection between Rogers and Mary Brian.

"Well, we were wrong," said the loose tongues. "They must be merely pals."

"Met Casually"
And they were wrong. If you'll give credence to the somewhat hazy recollections of Miss Pickford and the one-time It-Boy of celluloid.

"We just met casually," said he. "There were months and months when we never saw each other at all," said she.

"Well, really now," Rogers continued, "there wasn't any talk of marriage until just a few months ago. I think maybe it was the rumors going around that gave me courage to say something to Mary."

And so it's quite clear that the announcement of their engagement was merely the result of a whirlwind courtship, beginning a few months ago, when they first were seen together openly.

HALF-ACRE in EDEN

BY ROBERT DICKSON
© 1936 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
MARCIA CANFIELD, daughter of wealthy PHILIP CANFIELD, knows the neighborhood is buzzing over the sudden disappearance of FRANK KENDRICK, whose engagement to Marcia had been announced. Since his disappearance, a shortage in Kendrick's funds has been discovered.

With her friend, HELEN WARD, and others, Marcia is in a restaurant when there is a hold-up. Marcia loses a ring that was her mother's.

Learning Frank is in Chicago, Marcia goes there to try to persuade him to return and face his financial obligations. Before she reaches him, Frank disappears again.

In Chicago, she encounters RICHIE McDOUGALL, a stranger who volunteers a slight service. Bruce is also a passenger on the plane Marcia takes to return home. A few weeks later she sees him again. Bruce, an artist, has decided to make his home in the suburb.

Meanwhile, TONY STELLICCI, a real estate proprietor, suspects RICHIE of being involved in the hold-up and finds some of Marcia's ring. Later he threatens to turn Carlo over to police, but Carlo escapes. Tony reports all he knows about the hold-up.

DOROTHY OSBORN, who dislikes Marcia, invites Bruce to dinner. She telephones that she is driving her car on an errand and will stop for him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER XVIII
CARLO STELLICCI had fed Bobbs Neck without considering consequences, other than that he was likely to go to prison by remaining. Neither his invalid father nor Tony had been an item in his mind; he had paid so little attention to his brother and parent for so many years that it was only natural to ignore their interest in his precipitate flight.

Carlo had paused long enough in his flight to telephone a warning to his garage employees that their secret was out. This kindness, however, was prompted only by his desire to have the two meet him in the city with certain monies and property secreted at the garage. They repaid him by carrying the little hoard to New York and, instead of joining Carlo where he waited at a hastily appointed rendezvous, continuing their journey in flight to farther destinations.

Carlo at length surmised the truth. He had been cheated. And he vanished among New York's millions for a period of meditation.

During this lonely time he even neglected his four acquaintances in the city, for he felt a vast distaste for them. When, at last, he emerged from hiding, although he had never been called the answer to any one's prayer, he did indeed appear at a moment when profane questions were being asked as to his whereabouts.

IT was on a Saturday afternoon. Three of his friends were gathered in the apartment which Carlo had frequently visited. They were rolling dice without enthusiasm.

At a proper signal from the doorman one of the men opened the door and a fourth man entered. He it was who had acted as chairman of the last meeting which Carlo attended in these rooms.

"Well, I found out something," he said, slamming the door. "That Stellicci rat has beat it. That's why we haven't got any answer when we called his garage. The two tramps who worked for him have scrambled too, I guess."

"The four of us can do the job. One car instead of two. One man outside, three inside. What was the layout Stellicci gave us? Park at that door on the side street, he said. Come out that door, into the car, straight down that street. What was the next turn?"

No one remembered the answer. They had depended on Carlo and his men more than they had appreciated. And all knew the danger of attempting the job without an easy route for escape.

They grew profane as they called on Providence to deliver Carlo Stellicci into their hands.

And then the doorman rang with the answer to their supplications. Carlo Stellicci entered. An abject Carlo. A needy Carlo.

A Carlo who knew not where else to look for funds.

WHEN the Osborn car stopped in front of the house, Bruce McDougall was ready. Turning out the lights and pulling on his overcoat, he ran downstairs, patting his pockets in a quick inventory. Keys, cigarettes, change, wallet—damn the luck! He had forgotten to go to the bank this morning and cash a check on his new account. Now he had only a bit of silver, and faced a Sunday broke. What if Dorothy Osborn cared to see a movie tonight?

But as he walked toward the car he remembered having heard someone—Mike, probably—remark that the Bobbs Neck bank was open on Saturday evenings, largely for the convenience of shopkeepers who wished to deposit the receipts of their heaviest selling day. He'd ask Dorothy to stop at the bank; it would take only a moment.

Introduced to Mrs. Osborn, McDougall climbed in beside Dorothy and she turned the car.

"We have just one stop to make," she said. "I hope you won't mind waiting a moment while Mother gets something on Main Street."

"As a matter of fact," said McDougall, "I have an errand, too, and I'll do it while you're stopping for Mrs. Osborn. I want to dash into the bank."

Bobbs Neck was at dinner, and Main Street, soon to be busy with Saturday night shoppers and movie-goers, was comparatively deserted, so that Dorothy found parking space in front of the bank. McDougall helped Mrs. Osborn out of the car and she disappeared into a store a door or two away, while he excused himself from Dorothy and entered the bank building.

Inside the street doors was a marble vestibule, where a stairway gave access to offices on the second floor. Beyond was another set of doors, to the bank itself, unlocked now for the evening's business but closed on the January weather. About to push his way through the inner doors, McDougall fell back.

THERE was no mistaking the scene.

Four men were at another door, set in a far wall of the banking room, the side street entrance. Three were tugging desperately at the handle; the fourth, holding a gun, faced the tellers, who stood in apparent impotence at their windows, with hands raised.

In a momentary paralysis, before he could recover to act, McDougall heard a sudden and tremendous clangor from over the outside doors. One of the tellers had reached an alarm button with a cautious foot.

The four men gave up the struggle with the side door and sprang toward the vestibule, and McDougall retreated before them, horribly aware that Dorothy sat in her car immediately in front of the building and that her mother might even now be emerging from the store a door or two away.

He burst on to the street.

"Pull ahead!" he yelled, waving imperatively. "Step on it! Go on—go on!"

The four men came through the bank doors and looked out from the cover provided where the stone walls of the building projected a foot beyond the entrance. Half a block away, running heavily toward them, was a policeman.

The four men darted from the bank's doorway and sped around the corner. A shot followed them, and then another, but they reached their car. Roaring, but without lights, it sped away down the dark street, Carlo Stellicci at the wheel, with familiar roads ahead.

There had been a mistake in Carlo's plans. The bank's side door was never unlocked for the Saturday evening business.

"Spare" Ship Is Carried for F. D.

Indianapolis Has President, But Chester Tags Along "in Case"

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON.—When the navy takes the President for a cruise on the Indianapolis such as that to Buenos Aires, it supplies him with just what a high ranking navy officer gets—and little else. And that isn't much, on a cruiser.

On the Indianapolis, which is a flagship, with accommodations for an admiral, the President occupies the admiral's quarters. They are forward, one floor above the main deck. He has a bath, a bedroom, and one fairly large room to serve as combination office and dining room. The furnishings are like those in a two-room and bath apartment at $50 a month in an inexpensive apartment house.

His office-dining room has a desk, table, and a lounge chair, sofa, and such little odds and ends as a small silver engine, a cigar cabinet, and two or three straight chairs. More chairs can be brought in when company comes. The rug is middle grade, no deep plush. There are curtains, and navy china.

Ramps lead from the President's deck up to the communications deck, and down to the main deck. Meals (the navy, of course, calls it mess) are served to the President in his quarters.

Brow Trouble
Methodical and thorough, officers detailed to provide for the President's welfare on the Indianapolis had a list of 154 things. They began doing them last July, very secretly, of course, as that was long before the President announced his trip. The 154 items ranged all the way from putting motion picture films on board to arranging dock facilities at South American ports.

Next trip the President takes, the officers probably will list 155 things to do. The extra will be to provide the ship with a brow. It is a sort of swinging gangplank to transfer passengers from one ship to another at sea. The Indianapolis did not have one when it sailed and frantic efforts to have one built in the last few hours were fruitless. It was found the Chester had one, and as it was going along everybody felt better.

Chester's A Spare
Nominally the Chester went along to take press correspondents and certain aides. But that was not the basic reason, which was not published. It was for safety and expediency. The navy's job is to get the President to his destination. The extra cruiser goes along as a spare, carry on if the President's ship is disabled. Thus the worry about a brow.

When the navy takes the President over, it cuts him off from the White House to a degree. Personal secretaries are left behind and Charles K. Claunch, brown haired, brown eyed, thin cheeked naval chief yeoman, takes the job. He held it when Hoover went to sea. Now he is Roosevelt's sea-going secretary. The Democratic purge didn't reach him, in the navy.

Side Glances

By George Clark

"Of course she's just after your money, but you're not going to let that stop you from marrying such a splendid girl."

fied side, quiet and even a bit staid, allowing other hotels on the avenue and along flourishing Connecticut to handle conventions and chamber of commerce banquets.

Takes Fatherly Interest
Glass has had an especially fatherly interest in the hotel since, years ago, he obtained a waiver of a building regulation limiting such structures to 11 stories. The owners had set their hearts on 13.

As far as the Raleigh is concerned Glass is privileged guest No. 1. The staff says he isn't fussy. But some of the hands remember with shudders that time three years ago when while girl waitresses were substituted for colored men.

A girl delivered meals to the senator's apartment just one day. The manner of his protest is in dispute, but Miller, the white-haired negro waiter who had served him year in and year out, was put back on the job next day—and has not been disturbed since.

Last spring ambulance sirens screeching along Pennsylvania avenue robbed the senator of his sleep. He sizzled a protest to the city administration that the sirens howled even when the ambulances were not in a hurry. A city official sent him a box of colored cotton ear-wads. The sirens still screech.

The Raleigh management can't be as blasé as that. For Glass to move out of the Raleigh would be to Washington almost as sensational as for the President to move out of the White House. However, the owners took the long chance.

Whistling in the Dark
They put in a "supper club" (some call it night clubs), tore out the 1920 banquette and artificial marble pillars, scraped off all the gilt and tinsel, and redecorated the rooms, that is, all but Glass' apartment. He told them he liked it as it was. They didn't ask him about the lobby, but reported him as not disapproving the supper club.

When next he enters the lobby, he will be greeted by banks of mirrors, veneered walls and a ceiling which is a glory of blue and aluminum (no, no—turquoise and silver, says the management).

The manager sounded as one whistling in the dark when he expressed confidence Glass would like it. Those who know Glass say that as likely as not he will either move—
Or go down and enjoy the supper club.

Long Wait for Horse
POMONA, Calif.—(AP)—Paul A. Stilling of Bogota, Colombia, has bought a horse here and four years from now he can put it to work. It is a pureblood Arabian stallion purchased as a gift from the W. K. Kellogg Institute of Animal Husbandry of the University of California. Stilling wants the stallion to raise the horse for the first four years, then ship him.

Ninety-one per cent of the farms in Clark county, Ky., comes under soil conservation program this year.

Old Hotel Loved by Senator Glass

This Is the Story of the Raleigh, Veteran Capital Hostelry

By PRESTON GROVER
Associated Press Correspondent
WASHINGTON.—Senator Glass' hotel in Washington has gone modern on him—and the staff isn't 100 per cent sure he is sold on the idea.

The hotel (the Raleigh) is on Pennsylvania avenue just a stone's throw from the Smithsonian National museum, and is really a city landmark. In the hotel, Glass also is a landmark. He has lived there a quarter century, occupying in recent years a suite including a living room, two bedrooms and two baths.

The hotel was built back in the horse and buggy days of the twenties. The lobby, gilt, tiled and balconied, was not changed much until the carpenters and decorators moved in after election. The hotel has been on the digni-

A Book a Day

By Bruce Catton

You might wonder what pinocchio and Pilsener have to do with physical science, but that's the homely way in which Prof. Paul Karlson starts his book, "The World Around Us" (Simon & Schuster; $3). With a number of pleasant metaphors, the author converts what might be a dull subject into an exceedingly interesting diversion.

Dr. Karlson attempts a popular explanation of the physical world, beginning with the atom and ending with the heretofore forbidding theories of Einsteinian relativity and of light quanta. His explanations of these ideas are lucid and entertaining.

There is much humor in his lessons, and there are imaginative interviews or conversations, that direct the reader over larger bumps which never have been fully understood, except by the scientific student.

Thus, Dr. Karlson takes the reader vore a roller coaster to explain electric potential, or on an airplane that reaches from Berlin to Stockholm, to explain the meaning of "simultaneous."

It may take more words than an outright definition, but it's lots of fun and the meaning is more apt to stick.

An artist has illustrated the book with similarly entertaining sketches, hardly the kind you'd expect to find in a scientific treatise. But they also help put over the author's ideas, by linking the awesome mysteries of physics with everyday affairs.

To a scientist, of course, there's nothing new in the entire book. But at least, even he will admit, "The World Around Us" has a better chance of being read and appreciated than more complete but duller works on the same subject.—I. S. K.

Best some lose heart, this plan I bring:
Instead of sighing, why not sing?
In lieu of blenching, why not blench?
The beauties by you constantly?
Where fault and failure set their seal
Why not search out the hidden weal?
Lest some lose faith, this truth I tell:
Some grace and good in all things dwell.

The blighted life, the bitter tongue—
Beneath it all some spark has clung
Of glimmering, God-like heritage,
A soul's birthright thro' every age.
Lest some lose love, that blessed gift:
With tender touch the shadows lift
And learn why Love by Love is kissed,
The heart that gives of love's vast store
Is e'er redeemed by love the more.

Christmas Toys to Cost a 1/4 Billion

Children's Playthings Reveal Touch of Modernistic Trend

By CHARLES NORMAN
Associated Press Writer
NEW YORK. — (AP) — Prosperity—streamlined—has come around the corner for the Little America of boys and girls.

Sprawling from Santa Claus' $25,000,000 pack of toys this year are miles of trucks, railroad trains, automobiles and fleets of planes. As accessories there are filling stations, airports, hangars and train sheds. Almost everything in this play menagerie is electrified, streamlined and just about the last word in modernity. Almost everything works.

Building Boom
A record-size boom in toyland home-building is indicated, with furnishings, in period and modernistic styles, more realistic than ever. Two-car garages, landscaping and roads complete the picture. Automobiles with roomy trailers, latest phenomenon of the adult traveling world, crowd the roadways in the land of toys.

For the little housewife or industrious stay-at-home there are kitchens to rival mother's, with generous size ovens, miniature meat grinders, waffle irons, unbreakable dishes, ironing boards and even clothes-lines.
Trick Dolls
A new laking doll raises its feet with grace and doesn't have a wind-up, gadget stuck in her back. Other dolls smile, talk or peep, according to mood. Quaintest dolls have donned toddler clothes and have had their hair cut. There's even a baby doll in an incubator, with oxygen tank and all.

Doll carriages with safety brakes continue the streamline mode, while a new rocker for baby is the last word in "teardrop" design.
Now circus sets have whirling trapezes to which little figures cling. When they fall, there is a stretched-out net beneath to catch them.

Reflect Peace View
With the exception of toys and games inspired by G-Men activities and cowboys, 99 per cent of America's Christmas playthings are geared to penitence pursuits and reflect the nation's adult views against warfare.
"Children's toys inevitably reflect the interests of the grown-up world around them," says James L. Fri, managing director of the Toy Manufacturers of the U. S. A.
"Toys have always been designed to look like adult possessions, but modern American toys have been made purposeful, safe and durable as well, so that children can 'learn by doing.'"
The "learn by doing" note is reflected in the increased number of handicraft sets, for boys and girls. An electric pencil burns out stencil designs on wood. A tapestry weaving set makes useful products. New chemistry, periscope and microscope sets make possible a hundred fascinating experiments in the wonderland of science. There is even a radio set which enables junior to build a short-wave station at home.

For out-and-out amusement there are games of skill galore to keep brother and sister at home, and streamlined roller skates, metal snow-shoes and "airplane" sleds to take them outdoors.

Shakespeare Play at the Saenger

"Midsummer Night's Dream" on Local Screen Wednesday Only

The much-heralded Max Reinhardt production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream," the greatest of Shakespeare's comedies, and which the entire world has acclaimed as the greatest motion picture ever filmed, will show twice only at the Saenger Wednesday, first at 2:30 and once at 8 p. m.

Warner Bros., who made this picture have presented the production as a road-show in a number of the world's great cities and the great newspapers of the country thought it of sufficient importance to have accounts of its premieres cabled to them. News gathering agencies have devoted many columns to descriptions of these events for which patrons have paid as high as $10 for a single seat at a premiere.

The importance of the production as a news event is more than the interest in the world's most costly film. The picture, produced by the world's outstanding stage genius, Max Reinhardt, is said to be the first really adequate screen version of a Shakespearean masterpiece.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream," as produced by Reinhardt, is a mighty epic of the screen. It was directed by himself and William Dieterle. The dances were staged by Bronislava Nijinska and Nini Theilade and set to the beautiful music of Mendelssohn, as arranged by Erich Wolfgang Korngold. There is an all star cast which includes James Cagney, Joe E. Brown, Dick Powell, Jean Muir, Victor Jory, Verree Teegdale, Anita Louise, Hugh Herbert, Frank McHugh and scores of others.

We run our house on the HUDDLE SYSTEM

Maybe two can live as cheaply one one—on a desert island.

But right after we married, Jim and I soon found out that running a house costs money—more, we first thought, than we could manage to scrape together.

Things are easier now. It took a while for us to learn, but we have the plan down pat. Jim calls it our "huddle system."

There really isn't any trick about it. We have a budget, of course—so much for food, clothes, amusements, luxuries, vacation. But having a budget is one thing. Making it work is another. There's where the system comes in.

Religiously, each day, we read the advertisements in this paper—together. Jim looks for the things he is most interested in—suits, shirts, golf equipment, books, smoking supplies. I look out for myself—shoes, dresses, a winter coat, cosmetics, draperies, bathroom accessories, linens. Then we go into a "huddle"—report to each other—check over our budget—spend what we can for what we feel we need—and save!

Careful buying, Jim says, is the secret of saving money. But careful reading of advertisements, we both agree, comes first!

West Coast Well Represented in Rose Bowl

Football in N. W. on the Come-Back

Washington Is Smooth Running Notre Dame-Geared Machine

By HARRY GRAYSON
Sports Editor, NEA Service

Any lingering doubt regarding the class of the team that will represent the coast in the Pasadena Rose Bowl on New Year's Day definitely was dispelled when Washington walloped Washington State, 40-0.

Washington was reputed to be one of the smoothest Notre Dame-geared teams in years, but the Huskies waited until the final game of their regular schedule to get rolling. Running over Ed Goddard, the All-America back, and his Washington State teammates who repelled U. C. L. A. 32-7, was quite an achievement.

Pacific northwest football came back with Washington this season. Generally speaking, the schools of that section have taken a back seat to the California institutions in recent years. Pacific northwest teams won an even number of games with the southerners this trip.

It appears that Washington has an inexhaustible supply of material. Jimmy Phelan introduced a new star against Washington State in Al Craver, a huge sophomore fullback who scored three of his club's six touchdowns.

Washington has backs of all shapes and descriptions.

Left-Handed Haines Handy

They start with Byron Haines, whom the far west considers one of the hardest men in the country to bring down. The Huskies undoubtedly would have turned in a much more impressive record had not a leg injury kept this young fellow on the sidelines a good share of the time.

Phelan describes Haines as the most elusive runner he ever has seen and that takes in plenty of territory.

Haines plays safety and his punt returns have started the Puget Sound entry on a number of its touchdowns drives. He weighs 177 pounds and is stocky, measuring only 5 feet 10 inches.

In addition to his running ability, Haines gives the Purple and Gold the advantage of a left-handed passer. It was Haines who threw the touchdown pass against Minnesota, which dealt Washington its only defeat by edging out the Huskies in the curtain-raiser.

Elmer Legg is the best kicker on the coast and Jimmy Cain the most savage blocker. Ed Nowogroski would have been given plenty of consideration as the All-Coast fullback had not a bad knee kept him out of three games. And, in addition to those already named, Washington has splendid backs in Newton, Johnson, Waskowitz, and Auston.

Built Around Starevich

Washington's line is built around Max Starevich, who is being named on a good share of the All-America teams. Starevich is a stocky chap standing only 5 feet 10 but weighing 194 pounds. He is as fast as most backfield men.

Starevich has able running mates in Slivinski, Matten, and Means.

The Seattle outfit is three deep at

Sugar Bowl Teams Cut Down to Four

Opponents Are Expected to Be Made Public Wednesday

NEW ORLEANS—(AP)—Opponents in the New Year's day Sugar Bowl football game here may not be announced until Wednesday.

It was reported unofficially that either Louisiana State or Alabama would be the Southern representative and either Pittsburgh or Santa Clara the other.

The game is almost a sell-out now, only a few thousand tickets remaining unsold.

center, with Wiafrak an outstanding star. The other two are Mondala and Erickson.

Washington, famous for its tackles since the days of Ed and Elmer Leader and Gilmour Dobie, is well equipped at those positions against this season, with Markov, Bond, McKenzie, and Worthington.

As a whole, coast ends were below par this season, but the Huskies aren't exactly weak at the wing posts with Johnson, Peters, Matronic, and Douglas.

With the material to work with, Phelan has turned out a team with a versatile attack and one of great speed. Alabama nosed out a Washington team that didn't care too much about the game, 20-19, in a thriller that marked the Tide's first appearance in the Rose Bowl, January 1, 1926. That Washington team and its coach, the late Enoch Bagshaw, were against making the trip to Southern California.

But this Washington team, with its coach flushed with success in Seattle

Fishing Craft at Miami Hike Toll

Charter Price for Deep-Sea Fishing Now Is $35 a Day

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP)—A small forest of bamboo poles on pleasure fishing craft have replaced the spars and masts of sailing vessels which once pointed skyward on Miami's waterfront.

From these poles, which are lowered at sea to become outrigger platforms, fishermen try for big game fish in the Gulf stream and provide a livelihood for the owners of about 150 charter boats.

For $25 a day—$5 more than last year's price—the guides will take a party of from one to six a few miles into the Gulf stream or for a week's trip in Bahamas' waters.

When the angler begins trolling with a rod and reel from the bamboo poles, he can have fair hopes of snagging a calfish, marlin, amberjack or a barracuda, sometimes called the "tiger of the sea."

South Carolina and Georgia farmers paid 55 cents a hundred in 1936 for picking cotton, the lowest wage in the nation.

Bowl Officials Appear Puzzled

LSU, Alabama and Pitt Are Favorites of the Pickers

PASADENA, Calif.—(AP)—The tournament of roses football committee was "just as puzzled as the fans" Monday night over who will play the University of Washington in the Rose Bowl New Year's day.

In Seattle rumor had it that "contact" had been made with some eastern opponent for the Huskies, but university men wouldn't affirm it. Talk centered around Louisiana State, Alabama and Pittsburgh.

But Ray Eckmann, athletic director at the University of Washington, insisted nothing would be announced definitely until he has conferred with the tournament of roses committee here.

"(Nothing will be announced until after I have conferred with Stanford officials and the committee," he said in Seattle Monday. "Sometime this week we will make a formal announcement.")

He explained his planned meeting with Stanford officials because "I want to get the benefit of their long experience in Rose Bowl matters." The Stanford Indians have represented the west in the Pasadena game the last three years.

The Washington Huskies, enjoying a vacation at present, will go back into training December 12 and probably will come here December 22.

DuPont Tradition

ing trophies it has the marine treasures of the President. There will be a slight difference in the spirit of the places, however. The Roosevelts like to play. They play charades. They spring pranks on each other.

If the du Ponts are pranksters, the world doesn't know it. The term most often applied to the family is "conservative." But their conservative habits have given them a serene clan life.

Du Ponts Enter the Firm

The bride-to-be's father explains: "I suppose my daughter will settle down to be a good home-maker. Franklin is a fine lad. And then, all our women marry young, have good-sized families and devote their time to their homes."

"Most of our young men, whether they are du Ponts or marry du Ponts, are brought into our plants, if they wish. They must succeed like non-members of the family, but we have a system of shifting employees around until they find their niche."

He doesn't explain—because Eugene du Pont seems an extremely shy, retiring and gentle person—but the fact is obvious. The family doesn't insist that its daughters marry financial equals. Many have married poor men, but the young bridegrooms may have jobs.

Ethel Never in Factory

The women enjoy the family life that grows out of the clan's exceedingly successful corporations, but they know little of the business. Miss Ethel has never been in any of her family's factories—and there are 78 scattered through 28 states, employing 50,000 people.

The church of the du Ponts is an, other rallying ground for the family. They built it in 1856.

Its pastor, the Rev. Frederick T. Ashton, hopes to perform the marriage ceremony in June because it will have special significance for him. His father, Rev. Amos T. Ashton, was the pastor at the Roosevelt Hyde Park church.

The University of the South, Seawance, Tenn., was established at a meeting of educators atop Lookout Mountain on July 4, 1875.

Minnesota Ranks Top in Grid Poll

Arkansas Given 18th Place Among Nation's College Teams

NEW YORK—(AP)—Minnesota's Gophers hold their place as America's No. 1 college football team by a decisive margin over Louisiana State, champion of the deep south, in the final national ranking poll, conducted by the Associated Press for 1936.

Results compiled this week in the seventh country-wide consensus reveal Minnesota the choice among 25 out of 35 experts. Nine placed LSU at the top of their lists. One first-place ballot was cast for Santa Clara, the nation's only major unbeaten and untied team.

The final rankings with points tallied on a basis of 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1:

First ten	Points
1. Minnesota	322
2. Louisiana State	309
3. Pittsburgh	237
4. Alabama	218
5. Washington	216
6. Santa Clara	155
7. Northwestern	130
8. Notre Dame	107
9. Nebraska	69
10. Pennsylvania	34
Second ten:
11. Duke	33
12. Yale	22
13. Dartmouth	13
14. Duquesne	12
15. Fordham	11
16. Texas Christian	10
17. Tennessee	8
18. Arkansas and Navy	6
20. Marquette	4

The chief shake-ups this week, with the regular season closed for all but two of the "top ten," find Pittsburgh displacing Alabama in third place and Washington, the far west's Rose Bowl choice, hurdling its coast rival, Santa Clara, for fifth position.

It is interesting to note, in connection with pending post-season pairings, that Louisiana State is rated tougher opposition than Alabama, reported to have the "inside track" for the big money Rose Bowl game on New Year's day.

LOS ANGELES, Calif.—(AP)—Joe Levy, veteran local promoter, said Monday there is a "50-50" chance of a Braddock-Lewis championship fight in Los Angeles in February.

Back from a New York visit as representative of a Los Angeles sporting syndicate, Levy said he had offered Braddock $300,000 to put his title in the ring.

Many Upsets Due to Good Kicking

98 Games Past Season Are Decided by One Play

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Many an upset in the 1936 football record was put there by the single point after touchdown, the field goal and the safety. The extra point—a dropkick, a running play, a placekick or a pass, bringing about the seventh point tagged to a touchdown—decided 98 games this fall.

It saved, for a while, the unbeaten hopes of Fordham against St. Mary's, Marquette against Creighton, and Northwestern against Ohio State. It finally brought out Fordham's only defeat, by New York University. It kept Harvard from tying Yale in their Big Three tussle. It twice protected Washington State, in games with California and Stanford, and twice whipped Georgia Tech, in the Clemson and Auburn battles.

Other games settled in this manner included: Boston College 13, Holy Cross 12; Utah State 14, Colorado 13; Tennessee 7, Kentucky 6; Denver 7, Colorado 6; Chicago 7, Wisconsin 6, and North Carolina 14, New York University 13.

The field goal was the winning march in 45 games. Illinois and Texas A. & M. twice had it to thank. Illinois beat DePaul and Michigan, and the Texas Aggies won from Hardin-Simmons and Rice. Other major games decided this way included: Baylor 10, Rice 7; Navy 3, Notre Dame 0; Centenary 3, Texas A. & M. 0; Texas Christian 10, Tulsa 7; Washington State 3, Oregon 0, and Temple 3, Holy Cross 0.

The field goal was the only scoring weapon in the Tulsa-Centenary game that ended 3 to 3.

Razorbacks Face Loss of Rawlings

Speedy Halfback May Not Play Against Texas Saturday

FAYETTEVILLE, Ark.—(AP)—The steadily improving University of Arkansas running attack, which reached a high point of perfection against University of Tulsa, may be without one of its main cogs when the Razorbacks tie up with University of Texas at Little Rock Saturday.

Ralph Rawlings, the Razorback's fastest back and third ranking Southwest Conference center, turned up with an old leg injury in practice session Monday and Coach Fred Thomas said it was extremely doubtful the able to participate in the Porkers' 1936 finale.

Rawlings reinjured several leg muscles while overhauling a University of Tulsa back Thanksgiving afternoon. The same injury required two months to heal last year.

To replace Rawlings, Coach Thomas is grooming big Lloyd Montgomery, 187-pound sophomore from Bauxite. Tackle Ed Lalman had a cut over one eye but with these two exceptions the Razorbacks were in top shape for the Longhorn invasion.

The Texas game will write finis to the careers of seven Porkers.

In the backfield Bobbie Martin, Allen Keen and Vann Brown will be performing the tricky Razorback offensive formations for the last time.

There isn't a single senior among the Razorback's four stellar wingmen, but at the tackle positions Captain Cliff Van Sickle and Raymond Spillers will be closing out. Big Percy Sanders, the Magnolia A. and M. transfer, who starred from his first game, will do his finale at a guard position, and Ken Lunday will be playing his last game at center.

Winning Plays of 1936

By ART KRENZ
NEA Service Sports Artist

Stanford matched Washington's second period touchdown shortly before the half ended by bringing a 51-yard march to a successful conclusion with the off-tackle swing diagrammed above. The play was good for yardage against Oregon State.

With the ball on the Washington 14-yard line, Stanford went into a regular double wing formation with an unbalanced line. It then shifted into a balanced line and a formation resembling the short punt variety.

Quarterback Hoos went up on the wing. Fred Williams, right half, lined up about five yards back. Little Jimmy Coffis, left half, shifted in behind the short side guard, and the fullback, Culvelli, went up in the quarterback's position. This shift threw the Huskies' line out of position, making it possible for the Cardinals to do a better job of blocking.

Hoos worked on the left tackle Cal-

velli faked a block on the end, and continued on down the field. The right guard came out of the line and blocked the end. Coffis took care of the defensive left halfback.

Williams went off tackle, swung out after crossing the line of scrimmage, faked a lateral to Culvelli, cut back through the defense, and then cut out and crossed the goal line in the corner of the field for which he started. Culvelli blocked out the safety man.

STORIES IN STAMPS

By I. S. Klein

The Mysterious LOVER

RICHARD WAGNER's opera, Lohengrin, from which the greatest of wedding marches is taken, relates the story of the guardian of the Holy Grail who came to defend Elsa, who had been charged with having murdered her brother, Godfrey. But only as long as this guardian, Lohengrin, remained unnamed could he stay with Elsa.

Having conquered Elsa's accusers, Lohengrin became betrothed to her, but the guilty pair continued plotting against him. They poisoned Elsa's mind against her bridegroom, until she decided to ask him who he was.

When she did so, it broke the spell and he was forced to leave his bride and return to the Holy Grail. Brought in by a swan, while the swan that had brought Lohengrin returned to human form, as Elsa's brother, Godfrey.

This masterpiece is portrayed on one of the stamps issued by Germany in 1933, in Wagner's honor.

Colleges Approve Smoking by Coeds

American Universities Yield to the March of Modern Times

CHICAGO.—(AP)—Midwestern universities have reached the point of recognizing the co-ed's desire for a cigarette.

All co-eds do not smoke, of course, but for those wishing to light up between classes, it depends upon whose campus she treads.

Washington university at St. Louis has a faculty ruling prohibiting the co-ed to smoke in front of Brookings hall in the women's building or any place on the quadrangle.

At the University of Chicago the co-ed is considered old enough to use her own judgment as to where she smokes.

The same rule prevails at Northwestern university. The girls have the privilege of lighting up when and where they desire—except in the class room.

De Paul university and Loyola university forbid girls smoking on the campus. Loyola, however, has provided a special room for this purpose in its downtown building.

Iron Horse Snorts New Challenge To Rivals in Transportation Race

No, the locomotive isn't pushing the tender. And, no matter how much it may seem that way, the locomotive isn't "backwards." What appears to be a sawed-off smokestack isn't. That's the rear end of the engine. Note where the cowcatcher and headlights are located, extreme right. That's the front. The engine crew faces that way. And the train hooks on behind the tender, as with the old style locomotive. To the coupling seen at the extreme left. The picture shows one of the novel new types of oil burners being put into service on the Southern Pacific, especially for mountain runs, in the great 1936-37 comeback of the Iron Horse.

By CHARLES F. A. MANN
NEA Service Special Correspondent
SAN FRANCISCO—Far from being headed for the scrapheap, the Iron Horse is coming back, stronger than ever, with new blood and sinew for the transportation race.

An amazing variety of new high-speed, high-powered locomotives is being built to haul 70-mile-an-hour freight and 100-mile-an-hour passenger trains. Within the next few months, the railroads will introduce some of the most startling developments in power that the rails have seen in 100 years.

Some of these rail monsters will go 200 miles if necessary without refueling. New turbo-electric giants are being built for service for the first time on the American continent. They will be capable of running 600 miles without taking on water.

Artists are busy dolling up the new lightweight passenger locomotives with paint jobs and rakish lines which the auto manufacturers well may envy. In sharp contrast to the condition of a few years ago, when practically no locomotives were being built, the Southern Pacific alone has on order 10 huge articulated consolidated locomotives which will be the largest in the world.

that will haul heavy strings of Pullman cars over mountain grades at 50 miles an hour are being developed. And bigger and better Diesel-engined locomotives are also going into service before the end of the year. These include two giant 3000-horsepower, streamlined, stainless-steel Diesels for the Burlington, and a 3600-horsepower engine for the Union Pacific, which will be the heaviest and largest Diesel locomotive in the world.

The most spectacular of these new rail power plants to go into action recently are the fleet of "articulated consolidations," a novel type of oil-burning double-engined monsters being installed by the Southern Pacific.

These look like huge Hallet engines run backward, with the engineer and the fireman in their regular cab facing the opposite direction from the traditional position, the cowcatcher almost directly below them, and a set of broad windows across what was formerly the open end of the cab, now become the front.

Have "Backward" Look
The oil-tank tender is attached at what would have formerly been the front, now trailing the reversed engine. In models in present use the appearance is that of a locomotive running backward with its tender at the wrong end.

But newer models under construction will streamline the driving cabs so completely as to leave no doubt even to the casual observer as to "which way is forward."

These giants have been designed to haul passenger trains at high speed over the Sierra Nevada mountains and are so efficient that they will gently handle a 12-car string of Pullmans up to a 2 per cent grade at 45 miles an hour.

They are equally effective for freight or passenger hauling, and railroad men consider them the most nearly perfect type of mountain power ever developed.

Competition is Keen
The battle of steam, Diesel, and turbine locomotive will be a merry one in the months to come. And electric power enthusiasts have already mapped out 20 regions in which they believe electrification may be extended advantageously.

The Diesel streamliners which created such a sensation less than a year ago are already evolving. Their Diesel power plants have evolved into separate locomotives, capable of being

Tahiti Is Panicked by Drop in Franc

Living Costs Jump 40 Per Cent, Tourist Trade Is Cut Off

PAPEETE, Tahiti.—(AP)—Tahiti's "depression prosperity" has come to an end with the devaluation of the franc. For years past favorable exchange has made commodity prices low, while the island's principal export, copra, enjoyed a premium voted by the French government. Added to this was an influx of tourists that brought about a modest building boom.

Devaluation of the franc has increased the cost of living 40 per cent, and with it came discontinuance of passenger service by the one direct line to America and Australia. So stringent are conditions that authorities have had to step in to prevent profiteering.

Adding to the problem is the large number of natives who are now landless, having forsaken their tribal homes when there were plenty of jobs to be had in town.

"unbitched" from the rest of the train at will.

The larger Diesel plants are no longer built with the power mounted in one of the coaches, and this type seems destined for short-haul travel only.

Scarcely had the contest between steam and Diesel power gotten under way, when along came General Electric and Union Pacific, with word that they are building a turbo-electric giant which will hit the rails early next year. This recently built locomotive will have a high-pressure "flash" type boiler, similar to those used on U. S. navy destroyers, and a steam turbine generator set to produce electricity for the traction motors, which are geared to the drive wheels.

"Mystery" Engine Built
It will be fully streamlined, and built in two identical units of 2500 horsepower each.

Each half can be used separately, or the two coupled together as a unit if needed. Heavy oil, cheaper than Diesel fuel, will be used. Noisy exhaust is

And I'd throw in a sucker

BECAUSE the caramels and the fudge
Sometimes go pretty fast.
But a candy sucker, an all day sucker,
Is something that will last!

eliminated, and the steam is condensed to be used again. The locomotive will run 600 miles without taking on either water or fuel, at 100 miles an hour, and should be less costly than Diesels to build and operate.

Small Diesel-electric switch engines are now being turned out on a standardized, quantity-production basis like automobiles.

So the Iron Horse, which almost died of starvation in 1933, and was freely condemned to death as outmoded among the new models of 1935, prepares his comeback in the season of 1936-37.

Suggested as Dental Aid
LOS ANGELES.—(AP)—Stanley T. Olafsen, shipping manager of the chamber of commerce, is back from Hawaii with plans for promoting the importation of taro root.

He quotes Dr. Nils Larsen, Honolulu hospital executive, as saying examination of 50,000 sugar industry employees proved that chewing the root improves formation of children's teeth. The native dish of poi, a thick paste made from the root, is an effective remedy for seasickness known to most Pacific seamen, Olafsen said.

Arkansas Senate Votes to Cut Employees to 41

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The senate of the 51st Arkansas General Assembly bound itself by a majority vote Tuesday to restrict the number of its employees for the 1937 session to 41.

For A Live Man With $500.00

A well known St. Louis Manufacturer wants a local dealer-distributor. This is the chance of a life time for an ambitious man who has been hoping for a business of his own—and one that he will be PROUD to own.

He will handle a line of merchandise of new design and construction, with universal and continuous demand. It is easy to sell and there is no competition. He will have an exclusive franchise and should make $2000 to $3000 per year clear profit.

Your money will be in fast selling merchandise which bears a handsome profit for you. If you think that you are THE MAN the district sales manager will discuss this with you when he visits your city in the next few days. Fill out the lines below and mail this to Mr. F. W. WERNSE, care of Hope Star.
